4th September 1887 – 2nd September 1939

Nobel laureate Dr Amartya Sen said if the society is to prosper financially, it is necessary to make educational progress first. The foresight of our ancestors was so vast that they realized this fact a hundred years ago. No matter where they settled, they could not stay at peace without starting a school or educational institution. In many places like Sadashivgad, Karwar, Majali, Halge, Avarsa, Ankola, educational institutions started by their relatives have been imparting knowledge to thousands of children. How can the residents of Saraswati Bagh be an exception? The first two classes of secondary school (now fifth and sixth) were started in Saraswati Bagh in the year 1932 and the initiative was taken by the great educationist Shri. Shantaram Ganaba Warty.

Shri Warty passed Matriculation examination in 1902. He graduated with B.A. from Wilson College in 1908. He then spent four years as a teacher at the renowned Gibb High School in Kumta. He completed his M.A. in History and Economics in 1915. That caravan Gaud Saraswat Brahmin the first M.A. He was eloquent, passionate and outspoken. He was a prolific writer, orator and expert in Economics and Sociology. In 1920, he convened the Canara District Conference under the chairmanship Sir Narayanrao Chandavarkar. He became president of the Canary Primary Teachers' Conference in 1922. He was the Honorary Secretary of the Bombay Presidency Postmen's Union. He penned down the biography of the first LLB who became a judge later, Sri Vyankatrao Vaikuntha Wagh.

He got acquainted with the management of Mumbai Municipal Schools and later wrote six articles in this regard in the Times of India in 1924, pointing out its shortcomings and suggesting what improvements should be made. The articles were later published into a book and since 1924, elementary school reform has begun. He used to write on social, political and economic issues in various magazines as well as Hindi and English dailies. His proficiency in writing showed a variety of emotions with a perfect balance. He published a book titled „Sister India“ in 1928 in response to Miss Catherine Mayo's book “Mother India” his respect and pride for Hindi women.
